KENYA Land of Mystery and Marvels

Here we are still waiting to hear from you ... those of you who have responded, Thank You. Those of you who haven't, we're still waiting, but quickly running out of time. I hate to think we have to cancel, but that may be the case due to lack of participants! In order to qualify for this special group rate, we need an additional 7 people! Come on, folks! The longer you wait, the more difficult it is to book your flights. We can't expect UTg to hold the ground space either.

Now on to why we're here!

This is an Okapi. It's closest relative is the Giraffe although it looks as if it should be related to the zebra! I don't think we'll be seeing this creature, but you never know!!!

Here we have a Dik Dik ... it's one of the smallest antelopes and tops out at roughly 2 feet tall! These guys are difficult to see because they're small and blend in to the high grasses.

A few more "fun facts": Luggage tags: These should list your name, email, and phone number. If possible, you can include your itinerary. I know this is a lot of info, but it will help your luggage to catch up with you in the event it's lost. You can type this info up, fold it, and slide it into a good size luggage tag.

It's a good idea to keep a copy of your entire itinerary inside your luggage.

You can also take a photo of your bags and include their dimensions to keep with your travel documents. If your luggage is indeed lost, you can forward that info to the airline to assist in locating it and getting back to you.

~ ~ ~ ~ ~ We'll see plenty of examples of animals of different species sharing space with out attacking each other!!!

These are just a few ... we'll see MANY more!

Nope! That's not a sand castle!!! :>)

We'll pass anthills the likes of which you've never seen before ... they can be 5 feet high and more than twice that underground!

We'll see the Maasai and probably meet a few. They do incredible beadwork and you will find something to bring home. Remember, they do like to bargain, but don't be insulting! Enjoy the experience! ... and say "Asante"!!!

"Broad, wholesome, charitable views of men and things cannot be acquired by vegetating in one little corner of the earth all of one's lifetime." - Mark Twain

That's it for now ... if you haven't already, be sure to let me know you'll be joining us!
