KENYA Land of Mystery and Marvels

We'll begin each day with a beautiful sunrise! Of course we may not be awake to see it!!! Trust me, it's there! :>)

Thank you to all those who sent in their favorite photo from the newsletters! Seems "King of the Beasts">>> has won ... so far!

<<< Followed closely by (why am I not surprised) the Vervet Monkey ... No, guys, this is NOT photo shopped...!!! Join us and see for yourselves!

You can all begin preparations now by checking your Passport and making sure you have a valid Covid Certificate. Again, you will not need a ton of injections!!! You will need malaria pills, but we'll discuss that a bit later. Those pills are strictly a precaution. Personally, I've never seen a mosquito, much less any bugs or insects, at any of the properties or even out on a game drive! Oh, wait, I did see a moth once ... but that was it.

Most of the hotels we'll be staying at have spas ... So, if you'd like to relax after dinner with a massage, make your reservations early! As of this date, a 1 hour Swedish massage is about $37.00 USD. Not bad!

Every day we hear more and more about the loss of habitat and senseless poaching of many of the African creatures we'll see ... Elephants are killed for their ivory, Rhinos for their horns, and others for their pelts or to be sold as illegal pets ... very sad ... join us to see them before they're all gone and only on display in zoos ...

The Maasai make up a large part of Kenya's population - they are friendly, welcoming people. We see them win marathons here in the US. They are natural athletes when it comes to running and JUMPING!!!

I was told the jumping comes from keeping watch over their cattle ... the men make a sport of this and have competitions to see who is the best jumper!!! ... they enjoy showing off their prowess off for tourists!

... and seeing the video afterwards!

It's a wonderful experience and I do hope you'll all consider joining the group!

My server is still giving me problems and I can not send OR receive emails at info@RevengeTrek.com so please send your questions to me at jeanie6433@aol.com I'll get back to you ASAP and/or answer via this newsletter!

Enjoy the rest of the nice weather and celebrate the colors of Autumn!

'til next week, Kwa Heri! Jeanie Matthies-Kurzrok
